COURSE OUTLINE

COURSE NUMBER & TITLE: SOC 1500: Sociology of Popular Culture
CREDITS: 3 (3 Lec / 0 Lab)
PREREQUISITES: None

CATALOG DESCRIPTION:
Like fish in fishbowls, we swim within the water of popular culture. From the food we eat, to the music we listen to, the video games we play and the clothes we wear, we are embedded within a large fabric of popular culture. This course critically examines popular culture through sociological, theoretical lenses. We investigate how race, class, gender, sexuality, and disability influence the production, content, audience, and social world for television, music, film, magazines, books, and the internet, and in turn how these media influence us, our diverse identities, and society. MNTC goal areas: (5) History and the Social and Behavioral Sciences and (7) Human Diversity.
